

ACROSS the DESK

From the Warren Record, Warren, over the next hill. If this does not show a sympathy for speeders and a lack of understanding of the dangers of high speed, we don't know what would show it.

We will admit that a modern car, racing at 70 miles an hour may be under better control than was the old Model T at 40, but this does not remove the fact that such a car colliding with another car, racing at 50, within the speed limit, has a total impact of 120 miles an hour, and that when two tons of steel collide at 120 miles an hour the impact is something terrible. Unfortunately such head-on collisions are not too rare.

Few people stop to think that on automobile traveling at 60 miles an hour is going at the rate of 60 feet a second. No reaction is fast enough to suddenly check this speed, and if it were the momentum would cause serious injury to the passengers. Cats, dogs, opossums and hens daily meet their death on the path of motorists who unthinkingly kill them. Usually the motorist knows a second or more before he strikes such animal or fowl that he is going to do so, but is powerless to prevent the collision. The same would hold true should a child dart into the highway, or should other emergency arise.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

In late years more a proposal has been made for reducing taxes and for establishing legal limits will bring them into line with the government's income tax on the income of the most thoroughly developed of these plans was recently offered by the National Association of Manufacturers under the title "A Tax Program for Tomorrow." It is designed to outline the means by which existing tax laws can be amended without affecting the revenue of the government or the tax burden of any group.

It is impossible to do justice to a carefully prepared and researched program in a short space. The highlights can be outlined. It is based on the fact that the present tax system is a patchwork of laws, the taking of which is based on the principle of "pay as you go." 'AND SUDDENLY IT'S SPRING'

IN ENGLAND WITH MISS LAURA WILSON

January 22, 1956

Dear Folks,

What a week this has been. During the last week in Spain I was rather looking forward to the quiet and peace of life in Durham. I had left my life in just one adventure after another.

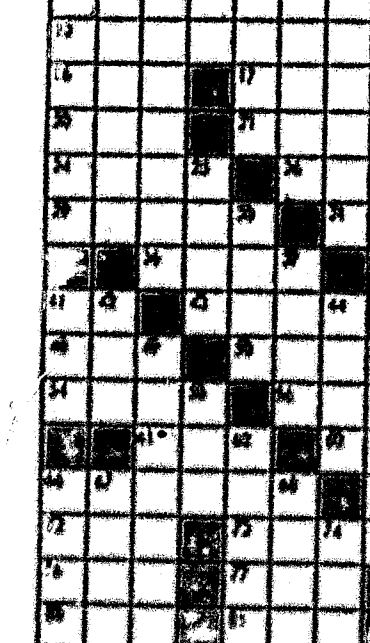

I was able to spend a quiet day Monday in London. We arrived there from the continent last Sunday, January 15. The girls found out when their trains went, we ate, and I went to the concert to the Friends International Center. When I arrived there, they told me that there would be a concert to which I went to that night.

While standing innocently minding my own business while waiting for my train in London, I was bumped, not by Tigger, but by Leo, the other American girl at Durham. On I had company all the way to Durham for a six hour ride. We kept picking up people all the way. My first impressions were good. How glad I am to see them, and then, oh heavens, what are their names? You sure forget a lot in five weeks. I also could not help but compare this arrival with the first one in the fall. Now I have many friends and Durham is very familiar to me. Quite a difference.

The tea party today was a charming affair. There were two American men, two American women, three English men, one English girl, one Swiss girl, and one man from Cyprus. It was hilarious, as I expected. People who ask themselves for tea are not the type who ask for tea and do nothing. It was a real treat. I am learning a lot about tea. I am learning a lot about tea. I am learning a lot about tea.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

"FOR several years," says Doris M. Van Cleef, 2020 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, Maryland, "I was what is known as a worry-wart. Though no worse off than many, and not as bad as many others, I had met all things in my stride, suddenly everything was difficult and too much to cope with. I was down, physically, mentally and spiritually. Worry became my bed-fellow and my constant companion. In vain I put my troubles in the Hands of God. In vain? Yes, because I repeatedly took those same troubles back to worry over them. Then through the persuasion of my lawyer I started a course in public speaking and human relations, where I learned to live one day at a time, to think neither of the past nor the future, to let the day I was living."

"I learned to face my problems squarely and to handle one thing at a time."

"This was like opening the shutters of a darkened room and letting the blessed sunshine in. Today I feel my life has been transformed."

Read Proverbs 3:1-6 or John 4:31-33.

Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest. (John 4:33.)

ONE I visited a home where a busy mother of five boys was cleaning the floor. I said to her, "You must find it difficult to keep the place so clean." She looked up at me and replied, "I had to learn to keep my eyes off the floor. To be a real help to my boys, I decided to stop nagging and to think of more important things than mud."

Her eyes were filled with sparkle, her face was radiant with the love she had for her family and for all who came within her sphere. In a few years whether the floor is soiled or clean will not matter much. The influence of her character on her children will be important.

ant. In her simplicity and sincerity, she is building greater than she herself dreams.

Jesus said, "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." The first field in which we can labor for God is the one nearest us—the home field.

Prayer
Our Father, be very near to us in our homes. To parents grant wisdom, vision, and grace so necessary to the proper guidance and training of those entrusted to their care. Help families to work together and in harmony with Thee through love and true devotion. For Jesus' sake. Amen.
